LONDON, Nov. 20 .- One of the most disastrous fires in London's history since the great fire of 1666, broke out in a large block of buildings lying eastward of Aldersgate street and between that thoroughfare and Red Cross street, just after 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. The flames were fanned by a strong wind and were fed by highly inflammable stocks of Christmas fancy goods and flimsy dress materials of all description, that filled every floor of the six buildings in the old street. Consequently the conflagration gained headway with surprising rap dity and was soon beyond the possibility of being checked by the few engines which were early on the spot. For four and a half hours the flames had their own way and it was after more than a bundred engines had worked an hour that the chief of the fire brigade sent out the signal that the fire was under control.

At 11 o'clock Friday night the fire was still the scene of greatest excitement. Fifty engines were playing upon the ruins, wagons were burrying up coal and tons of water were pouring into the flery debris.

The scene must occupy the fire brigade for several days, especially in view of the grave danger of the collapse of the shells of buildings which fall now and again with a loud report. The latest accounts indicate that nearly a hundred warehouses have been destroyed, while the loss will probably exceed £3,000,000 ($15,000,000). The historic church of St. Giles has been much damaged, the principal damage being to the roof, the old windows, the baptismal font and Milton's statue.

At 4 o'clock Saturday morning a very large force of fireman and about twenty engines have been working at a high pressure all night. The district ravaged by the fire is bounded by Aldersgate street, Red Cross, Maiden Head court and Bradford avenue, and intermediate streets of Jewin, Hamsell, Well and Edmund and Jewin Cresent, and part of Australian avenue, Paul's alley, Cripple Gate churchyard, Wood Street square, Monkwell street, Nichol square and Tore street.

It is officially reported that 150 warehouses have been gutted. A later estimate of the damage done places the amount at nearly £5,000,000 sterling ($25,000,000).

Nearly all of the British fire insurance companies are involved and fire insurance shares were practically unsaleable on the stock exchange Friday afternoon after the fire was well under

Nearly 800 telephone wires have been cut, thus interrupting communication with many of the big provincial towns. The fire will cause an enormous advance in the price of ostrich feathers, which rose 30 per cent. Friday evening. Two feather firms alone have lost £15,-000 sterling ($75,000)

The damage done by the fire is enormous. Most of the buildings destroyed were six stories high and filled with merchandise.

The area of the fire is at least 100,000 square yards. Sixty warehouses have already been destroyed and the fire has extended from Wood street square to Aldersgate street.

The fire originated in the store of an umbrella manufacturer on Hamsell street at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, and the great loss of property seems to be due to the delay in summoning the fire department. The published report says that the police officer who first detected the flames blew his whistle loudly for assistance, but several minutes elapsed before the alarm was heard by any of his comrades. As soon as assistance reached him the officer was dispatched to call the fire brigade.

But here again this was an unaccountable delay of 20 minutes before the first engine appeared. Then the fearful dimensions of the fire were apparent, and it was decided to circulate a call throughout the whole metropolitan district.

The church of St. Giles was built in 1545. It is approached by an archway in Red Cross street, also within the scene of the conflagration, and contains among other things the tomb of John Milton, who died in 1674; the tomb of Fox, the martyrologist; Frobtsher, the voyager, who died in 1594, and Speel, the typographer, who died in 1625.

Oliver Cromwell was married in the church of St. Giles, August 22, 1620, and the parish register contains an entry of the burial of Daniel Defoe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," who died in 1731.

Milton is commemorated in the church of St. Giles by a bust, by Bacon, and the late George W. Childs, of Philadelphia, erected a stained glass window in this church to the poet's mem-

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 20.—On a freight train dashing southward over the Louisville & Nashville railroad at the rate of 30 miles an hour late Thursday night one of the most thrilling encounters ever recorded in fact or liction occurred. Two men, one black and crazed by drink, the other white and conscious of deadly peril, struggle in the cab of a locomotive which ended in the death of the Negro and the miraculous escape from the same fate by the white man. When train No. 25, southbound, left here Foursday night at 10:15 p. m., Engineer P. Bishop and Fireman Wiley Craig, colored, occupied the locomotive cab. When we miles from the city, Bishop told the fireman to stir up the fire. The Negro paid no attention to the order, and it was repeated. This time he at ere I an oath and springing from his seat draw a revolver and suddenly and without warning fired a shot point blank at the engineer. The bullet missed him and the engineer struck the revolver from the Negro's hand just as the latter was about to fire a second shot. Craig, now erazed with rage, instantly drew a knife and grasping the engineer by the shoulder pulled him from the box and cut him in a dozen places across the breast. Mr. Bishop had a pistol in his nip pocket but he was held for a time in such a position that he could not reach it. Finally after a desperate struggle during which the two men rolled over and over on the floor of the cab, Bishop managed to draw his pis-

W. A. Harris, Editor of the Times-Herald Shot to Death.

His Brother, J. W. Harris, Mortally Wounded and Judge Gerald Shot in the Neck and Side and May Die-Colored Boy Hit By a Stray Bullet.

St. Louis, Nov. 20.-A special to the Republic from Waco, Tex., says:

J. W. Harris, editor of the Waco Times-Herald, a morning paper, and W. A. Harris, his brother, on one side, and Judge G. B. Gerald, a prominent citizen, fought a duel to the death on the street Friday night at 5 o'clock. W. A. Harris was shot dead, J. W. Harris wounded fatally, his body being paralyzed, and Gerald shot in the side and may die. The trouble was the outcome of the mobbing of W. C. Brann, publisher of the Iconoclast.

Gerald was an ex-county judge and one of Waco's most prominent citizens. He had written a bitter criticism on Baylor university with reference to the recent mobbing of W. C. Brann, and had filed it with Editor Harris for publication. Afterwards he asked to have his manuscript returned and became incensed at the editor's delay in complying. Bad feeling resulted, and when Judge Gerald was crossing the street at the corner of Fourth and Austin streets at 5 o'clock, Editor Harris came out of a drug store and opened fire upon him. Gerald immediately drew his revolver and returned the Hearing the shooting, W. A. Harris came upon the scene and took a hand in the fusilade, shooting Gerald from behind. Gerald pursued him into the drug store, shooting as he ran. Harris' fell to the floor with the words:

"You shot me in the back." He emptied the remaining chambers in his weapon into the prostrate form of his victim, killing him on the spot. Gerald then left the scene.

A little colored boy who stood near was shot in the leg by a stray bullet. Editor Harris was carried into the drug store by friends. His wife and daughter were notified and were soon at his side. The scene was pitiful. The wife and daughter weeping while the husband and father lay prostrate unable to move a muscle of his body or

HOME RULE

For Cuba is Approved by President McKinley-He Will Express the Hope That Cuba Will Not Protong the War. NEW YORK, Nov. 20. - The World Frilay morning makes the following statement:

"The World is able to say on very nigh authority that President McKin ley will tacitly approve the programme for autonomy, or home rule for Cuba, which Spain now promises.

"Second, that the president will express the hope that Cubans will not prolong their war for complete independence, but will accept instead a form of autonomy.

"Third, that if the Cubans do not heed his advice Spain will be given more time without interference from the United States.

"Fourth, the president says that he ardently desires peace both at home and abroad. War scares and belligerency resolutions disturb business, retards prosperity and do no good. A new congress is to be chosen next fall and everything depends on 'good times.' A season of peace from Cuban sensations is therefore now almost cer-

"Fifth, Spain has been informed of McKinley's hopes and plans, and as the first evidence of her own fond intentions and good will, she pardoned and released Thursday the American crew of the filibustering schooner Competitor, caught under arms off the coast of Cuba on April 15, 1896."
